

WHEN DIFFERENCE MAKES A DIFFERENCE: EPISTEMIC DIVERSITY AND DISSENT

June 2-3, 2006
University of Toronto

PROGRAM

FRIDAY, JUNE 2

9:00-12:45: chaired by James Robert Brown (University of Toronto)

Elizabeth S. Anderson (University of Michigan): "The Epistemology of Democracy"

Daniel Marc Weinstock (Université de Montréal): "What is Public Reason?"

David Coady (University of Tasmania): "When Experts Disagree"

2:30-6:15: chaired by James Beebe (SUNY at Buffalo)

Miriam Solomon (Temple University): "Epistemic Diversity or Epistemic Randomness? (Or, More on the Invisible Hand of Reason)"

John Beatty (University of British Columbia): "Group Deliberation"

Deborah Perron Tollefsen (University of Memphis): "Scientific Teamwork: Is there room for dissent?"

SATURDAY, JUNE 3

9:00-12:45: chaired by Alison Wylie (University of Washington)

Nancy Daukas (Guilford College): "Epistemic Trust and Social Location"

Kristina Rolin (Academy of Finland Research, Helsinki School of Economics): "The Bias Paradox in Feminist Standpoint Epistemology"

Rebecca Kukla (Carleton University): "Objectivity and Contingency in Empirical Knowledge"

2:30-6:15: chaired by Ann Garry (CSU-Los Angeles)

Miranda Fricker (Birkbeck College, University of London): "Epistemic Injustice in Social Knowledge"

Sue Campbell (Dalhousie University): "Performing Counter-memory"

Lorraine Code (York University): "Advocacy, Negotiation, and the Politics of Unknowing"

Organizers

Alison Wylie, Program (University of Washington)

James Robert Brown, Local Arrangements (University of Toronto)

Alvin Goldman, EPISTEME editor (Rutgers University)

Meeting location

Bahen Centre, Room 1230 (BA 1230), University of Toronto

EPISTEME: Journal of Social Epistemology

<http://www.episteme.us.com>