

University of Washington Brain Awareness Week 2007

Brain Awareness Week (BAW) is a yearly event to promote the public and personal benefits of brain research. As part of international BAW at the University of Washington, you are invited to an Open House on Tuesday, March 6, 2007.

The Brain Awareness Week Open House will include an interactive group assembly about the brain and hands-on exhibits that highlight different aspects of brain research. The Open House is scheduled for Tuesday, March 6, 2007, at the University of Washington South Campus Center.

Because of the high interest in the Open House and limited space available, we must restrict the number of people who can attend. Additional information (parking instructions, etc.) will be sent to the classes that are selected to attend.

For more information about the UW BAW Open House, contact Dr. Eric H. Chudler (phone: 206-616-6899; e-mail: chudler@u.washington.edu) or visit the UW BAW web page at: <http://faculty.washington.edu/chudler/baw.html>

If you would like to attend the Open House, please complete the following application and return it by February 9, 2007, to:

Dr. Eric H. Chudler
UWEB Education and Outreach
Box 355061; 1705 NE Pacific St.
University of Washington
Seattle, WA 98195-5061

Those teachers and classes selected to attend the Open House will be notified no later than February 16, 2007. Register early – space fills up quickly!!
