

University of Washington Brain Awareness Week 2001

Brain Awareness Week (BAW) is a yearly event to promote the public and personal benefits of brain research. As part of national BAW at the University of Washington, you are invited to an Open House on March 6, 2001.

The Neuroscience Open House will include hands-on exhibits that highlight different aspects of brain research. The Open House is scheduled for Tuesday, March 6, 2001 at the University of Washington Health Sciences Building. The Pacific Science Center/Group Health Cooperative "Brain Power Team" is also scheduled to appear.

Because of the high interest in the Open House and limited space available, we must restrict the number of people who may attend. Additional information (parking instructions, etc.) will be sent to those classes that are selected to attend.

For more information about the UW BAW Open House, contact Dr. Eric H. Chudler (phone: 206-543-7939; e-mail: chudler@u.washington.edu) or visit the UW BAW web page at: <http://faculty.washington.edu/chudler/baw2001.html>

If you would like to attend the Open House, please complete the following application and return it by February 9, 2001 to:

Dr. Eric H. Chudler
Department of Anesthesiology
BOX 356540
University of Washington
Seattle, WA 98195-6540

Those teachers and classes selected to attend the Open House will be notified no later than February 16, 2001.
