Kam Wing Chan takes issue with China's rapid urbanisation, and warns that the rigid hukou system that deprives millions of rural migrants access to services and benefits is creating a permanent underclass in cities.

Rebels will have to go the extra mile for Libya

Barak Barfi says considerable challenges remain, not least within the National Transitional Council.

China lets down its censors' defensive play

Patrick Mattimoe says a freer media will help Beijing project a more confident national image.

No surprise would-be leaders seek Beijing's favour, not ours

Albert Cheng notes how front runners for city's top job backed tough police action.

Kelly Yang shares her experiences of university in America at an early age in a letter to Hong Kong's youngest graduate.