COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course seeks to develop a sociological framework for examining crime. Consequently, we will spend most of our time presenting and evaluating sociological theories of criminal behavior. We will begin by developing a definition of crime and law, show how these ideas are rooted in the classical school, and then discuss methods and causality. This will set up our discussion of sociological theories of crime at the structural level, neighborhood level, and individual level. Finally, we will discuss punitive methods for controlling crime. Throughout the course, we will emphasize developing critical thinking skills when evaluating policy, theory, and research pertaining to crime. This means going beyond memorizing theory and research, and being able to critique and evaluate ideas. Students will have opportunities to apply critical thinking skills in discussions and writing assignments.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

- Provide you with an appreciation of a sociological perspective on the study of crime.
- Provide you with an understanding of basic theories, concepts, and research methods used by criminologists.
- Show you the connection between sociological theories and ideas and real-world phenomena.
- Allow you to simulate the work of social scientists by applying theoretical tools to case studies and other data.
- Make you a critical consumer of media reports and politicians’ claims about crime and crime policies.
- Develop your critical and analytical skills through oral participation and written assignments.

MARKETABLE SKILLS:

This course is designed not only to teach about crime and the study of crime, but is also intended to assist students in building marketable skills to use in their careers of choice, particularly those related to crime, law, and justice. Be aware of such skills and the possibility of building them throughout the quarter. The following skills are crucial for such careers:

1. Understanding criminological theory and research for practice in law and criminal justice.
2. Understanding the relationship between theories of crime and public policy for criminal justice practitioners.
3. Acquiring methodological skills to evaluate studies and conduct research in law, marketing, research and development.
4. Honing critical thinking and writing skills for work in legal settings, industry, and government.
5. Developing oral argumentative skills for law, government, and policy.
6. Working together with others to develop social and team skills for industry and government.

3. Other readings are available on-line from the course webpage.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

1. Active participation in the course, which means completing readings and homework assignments on time and contributing positively to discussion in lecture. Credit will be given for positive participation in lectures.

2. Active participation in discussion sections, which means completing discussion section assignments on time, attending discussion sections, and participating fully in section activities.

3. Two in-class mid-term examinations, each of which will be equally-weighted and non-cumulative. The exams will consist of objective questions. The exams are scheduled for Thursday April 12th and Tuesday, May 8th in lecture. We are not planning make-ups for exams; plan accordingly now.

4. A final exam, taken in class during the final exam period, which is cumulative, but weighted heavily toward the material since the second exam. The final will be held on Thursday, June 7, 4:30-6:20pm.

5. A three-page essay comparing an aspect of the two books, Peterson and Krivo’s Divergent Social Worlds and Hagan and Rymond-Richmond, Darfur and the Crime of Genocide. It is due Thursday, May 31 in lecture, and will be graded credit/no credit. Late essays will be penalized severely: one point will be taken off per day late. For assistance on writing, consult the Sociology Writing Center (https://soc.washington.edu/sociology-writing-center) the Odegaard Writing Center (http://depts.washington.edu/owrc), and CLUE (http://depts.washington.edu/clue/index.php). We also highly recommend the little book, The Elements of Style by Strunk and White (http://www.bartleby.com/141).

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY:

Papers and tests are to be original work. It is a breach of academic honesty to hand in work that is not your own or to use parts of another student’s work. Plagiarism includes, but is not limited to: copying of phrases, sentences, or paragraphs without proper citation, paraphrasing another person’s ideas or words without proper attribution, replicating the overall presentation structure from another source. Sources include textbooks, journal articles, newspaper articles, published or unpublished text, the World Wide Web (e.g., Wikipedia), verbal communication, paper writing “services” or any other source or person, regardless of whether you know him/her. Any form of plagiarism is grounds for failure in the class and removal from the University.

A lack of familiarity with the rules of plagiarism or the student conduct code in no way constitutes an excuse for acts of misconduct. Knowledge of these rules is your responsibility. A clear definition of plagiarism and other types of academic misconduct is provided at http://depts.washington.edu/grading/pdf/AcademicResponsibility.pdf. For detailed information about other forms of academic misconduct and information about disciplinary sanctions for academic misconduct read the University’s Student Conduct Code http://apps.leg.wa.gov/WAC/default.aspx?cite=478-120.

Grades are based on points. Each mid-term exam is worth 50 points. Positive contribution to lecture discussion is worth 5 points. Participation in discussion sections is worth 15 points. The three-page essay is worth 15 points. The final exam is worth 65 points.

Final grades will be based in part on a curve, in part on my expectations. To give you an idea of how grades are typically distributed, here is approximately what previous distributions have looked like for this course (using the UW’s grading scale):

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>% of Class</th>
<th>Letter Grade</th>
<th>Numerical Grade</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8%</td>
<td>A</td>

<tr>
<td>16%</td>
<td>B</td>
<td>3.1-2.9</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
16% B-  2.8-2.5  Median = 2.8 (50% percent are above this grade; 50% below)
12% C+  2.4-2.2
8%  C   2.1-1.9
5%  C-  1.8-1.5
4%  D+  1.4-1.2
2%  D   1.1-0.9
2%  D-  0.8-0.7  Lowest passing grade
3%  E   0.0  Failure
100%

All grades are final and, with the exception of errors, non-negotiable.
