UWT professor among Guggenheim Fellows

Michael Honey, a humanities professor at the University of Washington Tacoma, was among 180 scholars, artists and scientists named this week to the 2011 list of Guggenheim Fellows by the New York City-based John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation.

Fellows were chosen on the basis of achievement and exceptional promise from a field of almost 3,000 applicants from the United States and Canada.

The fellowship will support Honey’s project titled “Sharecropper’s troubador: the narrative, songs, and poetry of John Handcox of the Southern Tenant Farmers Union.”

Debbie Cafazzo, staff writer

© Copyright 2011 Tacoma News, Inc.