

Missing Exam Rule

If you are unable to make it to an exam period due to illness or another serious happening, do the following:

- 1. Contact your instructor - Professor Turnovsky (mturn@u.washington.edu) - the same day to explain that you aren't able to attend the exam and why.
- 2. I will then set up a date for a make up, contingent on the test taking person showing as soon as possible a valid medical note issued by a medical professional, on the original exam date. There is no flexibility on this matter.
- 3. If there is some other reason for missing the exam, (car accident, meteor shower, etc. etc.) come and see me to explain the situation and I may be flexible depending on the reason and I expect to see proper documentation for missing the exam (missing your plane or not waking up that morning are very questionable excuses).

The rules here are pretty strict, but this is the only practical way of handling possible missed exams with a large class. If you have any questions about this, please do not hesitate to contact me
