General Comments:

1. The variable names in parenthesis are names showed in the coding table.
2. The variables divide into two types. In the first few columns, the variables are categorical variables that describe various characteristics of a CC member, ranging from gender to revolutionary experience. Following Adolph (2003), the second series of variables assign job codes, start years, and end years to every identifiable job experience of a CC member. Thus, three columns are assigned to every job experience of a CC member.
3. This database draws from a wide range of biographical and historical sources. The main sources include the following:
